SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY

Andrew has worked in the environmental industry for over 35 years as a consultant, with various government regulators and as a business executive.

Andrew's technical background evolved over the years from water management through environmental impact assessment and environmental management to the most recent technical specialty in biodiversity assessment and conservation. He has been involved in the development of many planning instruments, strategies, government policies and plans to improve biodiversity conservation.

Andrew was co-founder, director and the CEO of Eco Logical Australia for 17 years. He understands business and consulting and is passionate about supporting individuals, businesses, and organisations to be successful whilst they deliver outcomes for the environment and our community.

As a sole trader, Andrew is currently on an advisory board to an environmental consulting business, mentors executives and helps business develop and deliver strategic priorities. Andrew advises and trains consulting firms on everything from governance, strategy, M&A, aspects of operations, sales, culture and performance improvements.

He still provides consulting on biodiversity strategies, approvals and nature in business (including TNFD).

Andrew is the immediate past President of the NSW Division of the EIANZ and is still on the Committee. He is an active contributor across the environment institute, inputting to policy, programs, advocacy and currently contributing to ethics in environmental markets and on the Nature Positive Community of Practice.
