Geoff joined the Australian Government Department of the Environment in 2008. He has worked on environment information management and environment research governance and delivery, marine and migratory species policy and regulation, and most recently, assessment and listing of threatened species and ecological communities and conservation planning for their recovery.

Prior to joining the environment department, Geoff worked as a commercial fisheries manager/regulator at the Australian Fisheries Management Authority.